

TWO KILLED IN ROW OVER RUBBISH

Newark Factory Watchman Shoots Clerk—Victim Dies Instantly.

TRAPPED BY POLICE, SLAYER ENDS LIFE

Double Crime Follows Many Disputes of Pair—Both Were Married.

As the result of a dispute over the disposition of some rubbish in the plant of the Newark Embroidery Works, at No. 78 Shipman street, Newark, last night the watchman shot and killed the shipping clerk, while hiding on top of the boiler in the engine room, the murderer fired a bullet into his own head, killing himself instantly.

The slain man was William Schott, twenty-three years of age, of No. 155 Runyon street, Newark, where he lived with his wife and one child. The murderer was Herman Nagel, forty years of age, also married, and living at Fifth avenue and Bergen street, Newark.

The shooting occurred in the sub-basement of the building and Schott was killed as he was ascending the stairs to the main cellar. He was shot twice.

Both Schott and Nagel had been on unfriendly terms for some time. It had been Schott's custom to remain later than the other employees every night to get out the orders, and then he would take the papers and other rubbish into the sub-basement and dump them in a bin. It is said that on several occasions the way he dumped the stuff, and on several occasions the men were on the point of exchanging blows.

Just what preceded the murder last night is not known. Gustave Schneider, the engineer, was the only other person in that part of the building when the shooting occurred. He was in the engine room, in one end of the cellar, when he heard the first shot fired, and as he started toward the spot he heard the second shot. When he reached the stairs he encountered Nagel, who still held the revolver in his hand.

"Get out of the way or you'll get the same!" yelled Nagel, and the engineer fled.

After waiting a few minutes he then sent in an alarm to Police Headquarters, and the reserves, under Captain Tuite, of the Newark detective bureau, were dispatched to the building.

When the police arrived they started to search the building for Nagel.

They first looked through the sub-basement and finally went into the boiler room. The policemen were about to leave that place when Captain Tuite decided to look on top of the boiler. As he poked his head above the top of the boiler he saw a flash of a revolver and heard its report. Every officer then drew his revolver and stood ready to fire, while Captain Tuite, who had started back, clung to the boiler ledge.

After a period of silence, Captain Tuite said:

"I guess he has shot himself. Bring a light, boys. It was then discovered that Nagel had committed suicide."

TO AID RUSSIAN TRADE

Association Meeting Here Attended by Shipping Men.

To make closer and more mutually profitable the commercial relations between this country and Russia, the Russian trade division of the National Association of Manufacturers held a meeting yesterday afternoon in its headquarters, No. 59 Church street, where representatives of steamship companies and others interested in the importation of food products aired their views.

The meeting was presided over by C. J. Medizhovsky, commercial attaché of the Imperial Russian embassy, who originated the idea of the commercial get-together meeting yesterday was confined to the outlining of the most sanitary and expeditious method of importing caviar, eggs, fish and poultry.

It was suggested that Russia was too strict in the matter of credits and that times business might be facilitated by the adoption of the broader American system.

Mr. Medizhovsky announced that the meetings would be a permanent feature of Russian trade expansion. It is his opinion that the entente cordiale created by the discussions will lead to some shipping reforms.

SHUNS DOCTORS AND SAWS WOOD AT 104

Samuel Keefe Piles Up Half Cord on Birthday—Bonset Tea Only Remedy Used.

Syracuse, March 10.—Samuel Keefe celebrated his 104th birthday to-day at his home in the town of Torrey by sawing nearly half a cord of wood. He is the oldest living graduate of Albany Normal College, and at one time was principal of an academy in New Jersey. While there his health failed and he went to Skaneateles Lake in the early 50's.

From Skaneateles Lake Mr. Keefe went to Penn Yan and to the old Maiden Lane School, which he had once attended as a scholar. Among his pupils was a boy who afterward became Lieutenant Harry Daines, Jefferson Davis's jester while he was detained on a charge of high treason at Fortress Monroe.

Mr. Keefe has never used tobacco and liquor, but is not prejudiced against either. He attributes his long life to the fact that he has ever kept away from doctors, never needlessly exposed himself and always observed simple rules of hygienic living. Bonset tea in his favorite remedy for ailments when water does not suffice.

"The Click of the Latch" is the title of a remarkable law court story by Gurden Edwards in the Sunday Magazine of The Tribune next Sunday. It has to do with the latest plausibility of moving pictures, used in evidence in the attempt to convict the political idol of a town of grafting. It is a thrilling tale, and would be popular in the movies themselves.

DECIES FAMILY SAILS

Elsie Janis and Montague Glass Also on Lusitania.

Lord and Lady Decies, accompanied by their daughter and the Hon. Seton R. Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, sailed on the Lusitania yesterday. They arrived here seven weeks ago by the same boat, and since then have been part of the time with the parents of Lady Decies, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, at Georgian Court, Lakewood. They also have made a tour of the West.

Elsie Janis, accompanied by her mother, left for London, where she will appear in the Palace Vaudeville Theatre in a sketch called "A Demi-Tasse of Comedy."

Montague Glass, the author of "Polish and Perimeter," and George Grossmith, who will produce the play in London, will be passengers on the Lusitania. They will be in London for eight weeks, producing their play at the Queen's Theatre. Michael Norton, author of "The Yellow Ticket," also left to arrange for the presentation of his play.

Frank H. Norton, seventy-eight years old, of No. 228 Seventh avenue, killed himself yesterday by shooting. His health had been poor for several months and his relatives say he was despondent. He left notes telling of his purpose to die.

Earlier in his career Norton had been a newspaper man of American and European experience. His last newspaper employment was with "The New York Herald."

It was learned last night that the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, at a meeting held on March 5, went on record against the proposed round-the-world airplane flight. A resolution urging the abandonment of the attempt and substitution of an American circuit race, was framed. Copies of the resolution have been sent to the officials of the Panama Exposition and to various aeronautical organizations. No comment on the action of the Pennsylvania club was made at the Aero Club of America.

Major JAMES H. HUGHES, 1st Cavalry, found incapacitated for active service, retirement announced.

STEWART FLETCHER, 12th Cavalry, placed on list of detached officers, and name of First Lieutenant JOHN E. HEMPHILL, cavalry, removed therefrom, latter officer having been entitled to promotion.

Leave of absence. First Lieutenant OWEN S. ALDRIGHT, 22d Infantry, twenty days; Colonel DANIEL CORSMAN, 7th Infantry, extra furlough from Water Road General Hospital, fourteen days.
